Learn the Basics of Cinema and Film

- Why not gain more knowledge on film history and theory to familiarise yourself with the equipment, strategies and languages used backstage.

Develop Your Soft Skills

- Directors need to have a number of skills and personality traits. Try to develop your communication, problem solving, leadership and motivation skills.

Develop Your Storytelling Skills

- Try to write your own scripts so that you can understand the best way to translate words into action!

Find Your Directing Style

- Finding your personal style or voice is a process. Try to figure out what works best for you.

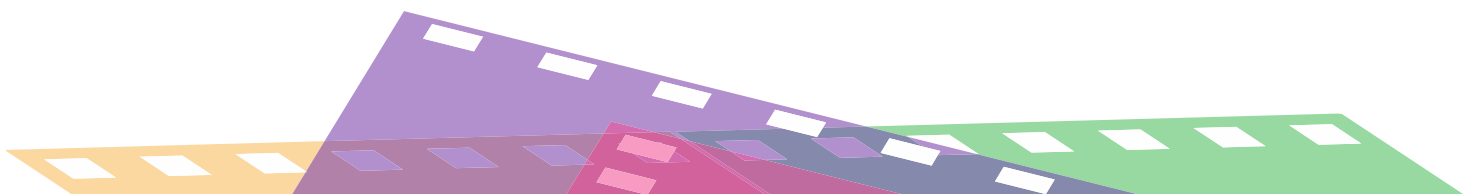

Network

- Gain experience within the industry by networking with others in the sector. A great way to network is to attend industry events.

Enter Your Work into Film Festivals

- Why not enter your directed works into film festivals! This can help to build your reputation and gain recognition from others!
